history in a box

amber  ocean  of  grain mahogany  majesty

we  shed  blood  on thee

wandered
in a caravan
covered wagons
compressed the fields
intended to make a new way but did not practice

the tolerance they sought

extinguished native traditions flattened the earth

confined to the frame looking back or thrusting forward the sun rays cry for thee